LANGUAGE SERVICES TAILORED TO YOUR BUSINESS

VILLAM offers a range of language services that can be customized to fit your needs. Our language specialists understand your line of business and ensure that you receive top-quality language services as part of every project. We provide translation, proofreading, certification, localization, interpreting, as well as data annotation and media localization services.

TRANSLATION SERVICES

VILLAM provides the complete spectrum of translation services, including proofreading, specialized translation, post-editing, and transcreation.

SPECIALIZED TRANSLATION

Specialized translation is the most popular choice when a translation requires expertise. This option is recommended for the translation of texts that contain any kind of technical terminology. Our top priority is selecting the appropriate experts from our network of translators for your translation project. Please note that specialized translation is much more than the 'simple' translation that many agencies offer: experts make all the difference.

PREMIUM TRANSLATION

If a client intends to publish a translated document, we recommend premium translation, which is double-checked to provide the best quality. Once the translator with the relevant expertise finishes the translation, it is reviewed by a proofreader. Proofreading is performed by either a native language expert or a second specialist translator, depending on the source text and the purpose of the translation.

PROOFREADING

Proofreading is a professional linguistic review and correction carried out by qualified translators, aiming to achieve accuracy and native quality in the translated text. Professional human translation serves as the basis of proofreading. If the original translation is poorly done, retranslation or post-editing may result in better quality. Our native speaker proofreaders examine style and spelling first and foremost.

POST-EDITING

We can maximize your investment in machine translation with the help of our post-editing service, which involves reviewing the translated content and increasing quality cost-effectively. For non-customer facing content, machine translation is an economical option. Combined with our review process, our customers can always get a clear picture of the exact quality level, and post-editing can strike the right balance between quality and efficiency.

TRANSCREATION

Let us create brand communications for you with a recognizable global voice across every channel. Texts that build emotional connections with audiences, no matter the country. Transcreation, sometimes called creative translation or adaptive translation, is a mix between new content, culturally adapted content, and simple translation. We are happy to adapt your communications both culturally and linguistically to suit not only the language but local markets as well.

DESIGN & EDITING

Our in-house desktop publishing (DTP) experts are at our clients' disposal to deliver multilingual artworks and non-traditional translations. Our dedicated team of experienced typesetters and designers are on hand to assist with DTP as well as web and video projects. By using our design and editing service, you can ensure that your visual identity is maintained when creating documents in alternative languages.

INTERPRETING SERVICES

We offer a wide range of interpreting services, where each job is treated as a bespoke assignment. VILLAM's interpreting project managers take care of every aspect of your project with no hidden costs. If you provide us with a date, time, and an assignment description, we come up with ideas to find the most suitable interpreting solution for your project.

Our services include the following:

- ✓ Face-to-face interpreting, where the interpreter provides an oral translation every few sentences while the speaker pauses.
- ✓ Remote interpreting, where we can connect you to an interpreter over Zoom or any other similar platform at very short notice.
- ✓ Simultaneous interpreting, where the interpreter sits next to the people who need the translation and whispers the interpretation to them.

SUBTITLING AND VOICE-OVER

Our media localization department offers an end-to-end solution for creating, managing, and delivering audio, video, and rich media content to your local and global markets. VILLAM's team of video and graphic editors and specialist project managers make sure that your video projects are localized properly and can safely face local audiences.

Subtitling is a professional and cost-effective solution for localizing informational or instructional videos. It requires less time and resources than producing voice-overs, and it offers a wider choice of future use. Voice-over translation is an audiovisual translation technique, where narrative scripts are first translated and then recorded by native speaker voice talents. The new voice is placed over the original audio track that either can or can't be heard in the background. VILLAM's professional video team ensures that each voice-over and subtitled video conveys the intention and message of the original video.

ISO 17100 & QUALITY ASSURANCE

VILLAM is certified and fully ISO 17100 compliant, which increases value for money and peace of mind for all of our clients.

For us, quality control is of paramount importance. To that end, we employ a review process as part of each translation assignment. Our processes are continually audited to ensure that our work maintains the highest degree of precision.

FAIR TRADE

Can language services be sustainable both in an ecological and in an economical sense?

We believe they can! In order to maintain high quality, transparency, and clean processes, fair trade principles are applied to our supplier chain. Having the least possible impact on the environment or managing finite resources skilfully is already a commendable achievement.

Our clean translation principles are the following:

RECYCLE

Use a translation memory to store and recycle your previous works.

FAIR TRADE

Opt for a fair translation model, and build on responsibility and cooperation.

REUSE

Use terminology, and reuse previous versions to keep changes to a minimum.

SHARE

Share your invested energy, and support your partners, if possible.

We would like to provide insight into the process in which the work of creative translators and interpreters is associated with the most added value. A value that is manifested directly at the client's side while not imposing a burden on creative workers. We can think, plan, and make responsible decisions together.
